LIVE NBA DATA, FELT THROUGH THE FINGERTIPS AT SUNS GAMES

OneCourt's haptic display, and the home unit that comes next

THE TECH

HOW THE ONECOURT DISPLAY WORKS

1 LEAGUE DATA IN

The device connects to the NBA's real-time game data.

2 VIBRATIONS OUT

As the ball moves, vibrations travel across a court-shaped surface beneath the fan's fingers.

3 AUDIO BITES

Headphones carry short generated descriptions of the play.

4 TACTILE CONTROLS

Pressing A gives the score and time remaining. A dull pulse at center court marks a break in play.

WHAT IT CHANGES

WHAT THE HOME UNIT ADDS

1 THREE SPORTS

Interchangeable magnetic covers outline a baseball field, basketball court and football field.

2 NO BLACKOUTS

OneCourt says the subscription pulls official data for all games, with no blackouts.

3 PHONE-LINKED

The unit connects to a phone over Bluetooth and syncs with the OneCourt app.

“

It's more like a game console than it is a medical marvel or piece of technology that is so expensive.
